WHAT OUR MEMBERS SAY:

ZAC MUNN JBI

'It truly is a network open to all who are passionate about guideline development. The more engaged you are, the more you benefit; get involved and reap the benefits of this fantastic network.'

JOSEPH MATHEW ADVANCED PEDIATRICS CENTRE OF MEDICAL EDUCATION AND RESEARCH, INDIA
'G-I-N is the premier scientific network for guideline development, dissemination and implementation.'

PER OLAV VANDVIK MAGIC
'G-I-N has been instrumental for my organisation learning more about guideline standards, methods, processes and tools. G-I-N has allowed me to network across continents and countries with colleagues interested in collaborating and sharing their experiences.'

RICHARD ROSENFELD AMERICAN ACADEMY OF OTOLARYNGOLOGY
'A quote from William Osler: "He who studies medicine without books sails an unchartered sea, but he who studies medicine without patients does not go to sea at all." G-I-N not only puts wind in the sails but provides a wonderful barrier to unchartered seas. Any organisation with a serious interest in guidelines will benefit greatly.'

PATRICK MBAH OKWEN EFFECTIVE BASE SERVICES AFRICA
'G-I-N provides effective networks with other organisations which have supported our activities both in human and financial resources.'

HECTOR PARDO-HERNANDEZ, RESEARCHER IBEROAMERICAN COCHRANE CENTRE
'Being a member of G-I-N has allowed us to work together with worldwide experts in guideline development. G-I-N fosters these collaborative partnerships via the annual conferences and working groups, providing the perfect framework for successful, efficient networking.'
